Canada has an important Kabyle community which is mainly established in Québec and Ontario. Its members stand out by their high level of competency in various areas. Their energy represents a workforce which provides an important input to the development of the Canadian society.

The best integration of the Kabyle community in the Canadian society is the main driver for its development.

Equipped with values of tolerance, respect and openness, the Kabyle community of Canada is ready for a representative and visible organization.

Our ties to our values are strengthened by a very active network of community associations. To go further, we need and organization that represents the Kabyle community across Canada to help us build on our achievements and strengthen our capacity.

On February 18, 2017, a large meeting of Kabyles that took place in Montreal gave a mandate to an interim committee to consult Kabyles about building a national congress.

The mandate of the future congress, elected by the community, is to defend and promote the interests of the Kabyle community.
